This book is the result of research supported by the Ministry of Education of the Republic of Korea, the National Research Foundation of Korea(NRF-2020S1A3A2A03096777), and Sungkyunkwan University in 2020.

This book is the cumulative codebook for the Korean General Social Survey (KGSS) from 2003 to 2023. The KGSS is essential for understanding the changes in Korean society. The cumulative data for the KGSS from 2003 to 2023 were created by harmonizing the 2023 data with the cumulative data from 2003 to 2021. The codebook includes the distribution of responses for all surveyed items, questionnaires, interviewer guidelines, and references to facilitate understanding for researchers and students using the cumulative data. Researchers can download the cumulative data and related materials from the KGSS website (<http://kgss.skku.edu>).

This book could not have been published without the help of many individuals. First, we extend our gratitude to the 22,701 respondents who participated in the 16 KGSS surveys from 2003 to 2023, as well as to the 2,797 students who served as interviewers, and the 116 professors involved (see Appendix 5. List of Professors and Students Participating in the KGSS). We are particularly grateful for the generous support of Professors Junghwan Lee of Cheongju University (13 surveys), Taeryong Choi of Gyeongsang National University (12 surveys), Heejae Kim of Pusan National University (11 surveys), Jae-Mook Park of Chungnam National University (11 surveys), Young-Jeong Kim of Jeonbuk National University (10 surveys), Ju-Yul Lee of Namseoul University (9 surveys), and Han-Jin Eom of Hallym University (9 surveys). Due to the COVID-19 situation and funding constraints, the 2021 survey data were collected by a research company rather than by students. Similarly, the 2023 survey outsourced the interviews to a research company.

Second, we express our deep gratitude to the professors who utilized the KGSS in their statistics or survey methodology courses and to the many researchers who contributed to the development of social sciences in Korea by analyzing KGSS data (see Appendix 3. List of Publications Using KGSS). Third, we thank the former directors of the Sungkyunkwan University Survey Research Center—Hyunho Seok, Jonghoe Yang, and Sang-Wook Kim—for their dedication, and Jaeyeol Yee, the KGSS advisory chair, for their support under challenging conditions. We owe special thanks to Hyunho Seok, the founder of KGSS, for raising awareness among many social scientists in Korea about the importance of data quality and for laying the groundwork for research on survey methodology and survey quality improvement. Fourth, we appreciate Heechoon Shin for sample extraction and weighting work, and Mihee Ban for her work on industry and occupation classification. Finally, the completion of the codebook was made possible by the contributions of the research fellows at the Survey Research Center, Worlhwa Kim and Minyoung Yoo, as well as the assistants—students Gwangjong Yu, Yongmin Kim, Kyuyoung Kim, Wookyoung Kim, Heesoo Min, and Seoyeon Choi.

This book is the result of financial support from the National Research Foundation of Korea, the Sungkyunkwan University Foundation, and the Academy of East Asian Studies at Sungkyunkwan University for the collection of KGSS data. The Korean General Social Survey was made possible by the support of the National Research Foundation of Korea from 2003 to 2014. From 2016 to 2018, despite the discontinuation of support from the National Research Foundation of Korea, the KGSS was sustained thanks to the financial and moral support of various institutions and researchers, including Sungkyunkwan University, the Institute for Social Development and Policy Research at Seoul National University, the Korea Institute for Health and Social Affairs, and the Korea Institute of Public Administration. Fortunately, since 2020, the KGSS has received long-term data research funding from the Social Science Korea (SSK) program of the National Research Foundation of Korea. The KGSS in 2021 and 2023 was conducted with the support of the National Research Foundation of Korea and the Sungkyunkwan University Foundation.

Moving forward, we will continue to uphold the basic principles of the survey, maintain transparency in the overall survey process, and strive to produce quality data that contributes to Korean social sciences. This will ensure that the sacrifices and efforts of those who have contributed to the Korean General Social Survey will not be in vain.

I . INTRODUCTION

The Korean General Social Survey (KGSS), launched in 2003 by Hyun-ho Seok, Professor Emeritus of Sociology at Sungkyunkwan University, is a "publicly beneficial social science data creation project." Unlike commercial surveys, government surveys, or those conducted by public institutions, the KGSS was designed with a paradigm shift focusing on producing data with minimal overall survey errors. The founding principle was to prioritize academic integrity over other interests.¹⁾ The project traces its roots to a preliminary study supported by National Research Foundation of Korea under its basic academic support initiative. The KGSS Pilot Study, conducted by the Survey Research Center of the Academy of East Asian Studies at Sungkyunkwan University, was initiated with the following principles: it aimed to include "a broad range of core topics in social science" for "academic purposes," strictly adheres to "methodological principles," fulfills "ideal standards of probability sampling" through "periodic and repetitive methods," and enables "international comparative research," while making the data freely freely accessible.²⁾

The Korean General Social Survey (KGSS) is the "Korean version" of the General Social Survey (GSS), which was first established in 1972 by NORC at the University of Chicago and has had a tremendous global impact over the past 50 years.³⁾ The KGSS is a large-scale academic project aimed at creating and disseminating a comprehensive research database that meets all of the ideal methodological standards. It covers a broad range of core topics that are essential to understanding Korean society, with annually repeated core questions and modules suggested by researcher. The KGSS also participates in cross-national survey research through its integration with the ISSP (International Social Survey Programme)⁴⁾, EASS (East Asian Social Survey)⁵⁾ and the ESS (European Social Survey).⁶⁾

The excellence of KGSS is due to its high representativeness and survey repeatability: (1) High Representativeness: The KGSS prioritizes the representativeness of respondents over sheer number of respondents, ensuring that the sample accurately reflects the broader population. (2) Survey Repeatability: The cumulative nature of repeatedly surveying the core questions in the KGSS is essential for studying both societal stability and change. The value of pooled cross-sectional data, accumulated over multiple years, is greater than that of individual annual surveys.

Just as the General Social Survey (GSS) in the United States, which has received financial

5) EASS is a joint survey conducted by four East Asian countries (South Korea, Japan, China, and Taiwan) that carry out GSS-style data (<http://www.eassda.org>). In 2016 and 2018, EASS was jointly conducted by the Survey Research Center at Sungkyunkwan University and the Social Development Institute at Seoul National University.

support from the National Science Foundation (NSF) for more than 50 years and serves as a key resource for understanding social change in the U.S., the active and extensive use of the KGSS is expected to provide a foundation for understanding social change in Korea.⁷⁾

II. DATA

The KGSS samples men and women aged 18 and older, using a multistage area probability sampling method. Data collection is conducted through face-to-face interviews. The KGSS achieves a relatively high response rate compared to other surveys, maintaining strict adherence to probabilistic sampling principles. However, reflecting the difficulties of the overall survey environment⁸⁾, the response rate of the KGSS has also declined to around 40–50% since 2016. The number of respondents per year and the response rate were as follows: 1,315 in 2003(66%); 1,312 in 2004(66%); 1,613 in 2005(65%); 1,605 in 2006(64%); 1,431 in 2007(57%); 1,507 in 2008(60%); 1,599 in 2009(64%); 1,576 in 2010(65%); 1,535 in 2011(61%); 1,396 in 2012(56%); 1,294 in 2013(52%); 1,370 in 2014(55%); 1,051 in 2016(47%); 1,031 in 2018(43%); 1,205 in 2021(50%); 1,230 in 2023(51%).

The cumulative data from 2003 to 2023 has been compiled into a single file, making it easier for users to access the KGSS. During the harmonization process of each annual file, if variables had the same name despite being different in the publicly available data, new variable names were assigned in the cumulative dataset (for example, the variable name INTERNET from the 2013 survey was changed to INTRNT13 in the cumulative data). In such cases, the codebook includes two variable names for a single survey item in the questionnaire. The cumulative raw data for the years 2003–2013 and 2003–2014 was created by aggregating the publicly available annual data, and it includes corrections for errors found in the existing annual data. The cumulative dataset contains statistical tables for all annual items, along with appendices that include the variable name questionnaire, interviewer guidelines, the bibliography of KGSS literature, an overview of ISSP/EASS/ESS/researcher proposed modules, a list of participating professors and students in KGSS, the structure of the KGSS, and a comprehensive KGSS index. The table below explains the tables presented in the cumulative dataset for users.

The table consists of title, item information, frequencies, availability of show cards, and changes in question or response categories. The title of the table shows the serial number and a brief description of the question, and below it shows the total questionnaire item and variable name. The frequency table includes the response categories and their corresponding variable values, as well as the distribution of responses for the years from 2003 to 2023 when the items were surveyed. Due to space constraints, the years 2003, 2004, 2005, 2006, and 2007 are grouped and denoted as '03-07'. The percentages for 2003-2007 may not accurately reflect the percentages for specific years due to a higher number of "not applicable" cases when not all questions were asked in each year. Therefore, the raw data should be used. The frequency figures are presented as percentages, rounded to one decimal place. Due to rounding at the second digit, there could be cases displayed as 0 which are not actually zero. (for example, 0.04% may be shown as 0). At the bottom of the frequency table, the total number of respondents (N) for each year is provided, allowing you to see how many people responded to each response category based on the distribution and number of respondents. The percentages in the table are weighted.

Other items includes the availability of show cards, changes in survey items and response categories, and keywords. If show cards were provided for an item (starting from 2016, show cards were provided for all items), this is noted in the annotations. If show cards were not provided for all surveyed years, only the years when show cards were available are indicated (for example, '05-18' means that show cards were provided from 2005 to 2018, implying that they were not provided to respondents in 2003 and 2004). Even if the same variable name was used, any changes in survey items and response categories were recorded to allow for comparison. Finally, keywords were created by borrowing as many words as possible directly from the survey items, though this was not always possible. Additionally, searching for keywords in the index of the cumulative dataset can help identify other variables corresponding to the same keywords.

The appendix includes the following: a questionnaire with variable names (Appendix 1), a bibliography of literature using KGSS (Appendix 2), Overview of ISSP/EASS/ESS/Researcher-proposed modules (Appendix 3), a status report on the composition of the survey that indicates which items were surveyed and when (Appendix 4), and an index related to the variables (Appendix 5).

III. Survey Contents and Methods

1. Survey Contents

The KGSS survey content includes core repeated items, ISSP topical modules, EASS topical modules, ESS topical modules (starting from 2023), and researcher-proposed items, all integrated as needed. The structure has enabled a wide range of academic research on Korean society, advancements in social science methodologies, studies on social changes in Korea, and cross-national comparative research. It is utilized across various societal fields and is widely used as an educational resource.⁹⁾

1) Repeated Core Survey

The Repeated Core Survey is the item that is repeatedly asked every year. The questionnaire consists of about 140 items to grasp the socio-demographic background variables as well as key elements of political economy and society. This questionnaire identifies the stability and volatility of Korean society by repeatedly and continuously investigating major social issues with academic significance.

The content of each survey can be specifically described as follows:

(1) Political questions: National pride(KRPROUD 2003-2023), Political orientation (PARTYLR 2003-2023), Satisfaction on the current Korean politics (SATPOL 2003-2014, 2018-2023), Prospect on South Korean politics (POLPROS 2004-2014), Supporting political party (PRTYID 2003-2023), Preferring political party (PRTYPR 2003-2009, 2013-2023), Assessment on the current government's state affair administrations (CURGOV 2003-2018, 2023)

2) Cross-National Comparative Survey

The KGSS contributes to understand social change within Korea and also participates in ISSP, EASS, and ESS to gather data for cross-national comparative studies.

(1) ISSP Topical Module Investigation

ISSP is a collaborative project for international comparative research (<http://www.issp.org>). Founded in 1984, the International Social Survey Programme is a consortium with 45 member countries as of 2024. The member countries of ISSP determine the survey topics and questionnaire items at the annual general assembly and conduct the surveys. The data generated from this survey has been used in 10,952 publications as of September 2022, widely recognized as one of the most important datasets for international comparative research.¹⁰⁾

At the ISSP General Meeting in 2003, Sungkyunkwan University's East Asia Academy Survey Research Center was officially designated as Korea's representative member organization and subsequently collected data for the national identity module that same year. There are 11 subject modules that ISSP has developed so far (see <Table 1>).

* The 「Social Networks」 module from 1986 and 2001 evolved into the 「Social Networks and Social Resources」 module in 2017.

 The 「National Identity」 and 「Citizenship」 modules were combined to form the 「National Identity & Citizenship」 module in 2023.

Recent and upcoming themes include "National Identity and Citizenship" in 2023, "Digital Society" in 2024, "Labor Orientation" in 2025, and "The Role of Government" in 2026. Among these modules, all except for 「Leisure and Sports」 have already been surveyed cyclically 2 to 5 times over a period of several years (approximately 5 to 10 years). Cyclically surveyed modules typically include about two-thirds of the questions from previous modules. The introduction of new questions or modification of existing ones is determined through in-depth discussions among member countries, considering recent social-academic significance. There have been changes to the ISSP modules: "Leisure and Sports" was excluded, and the two previously independent modules, "National Identity" and "Citizenship," were merged into a single "National Identity and Citizenship" module. Additionally, a new "Digital Society" module was developed.¹¹⁾ Unless new modules are designated in the future, these modules are expected to be surveyed on a cyclical basis, roughly every 10 years. By repeating the topical modules at such intervals, ISSP generates data that allows for the analysis of global changes in a comparative context between countries or continents. A more detailed introduction to the main topics to be covered in ISSP's 2023 "National Identity and Citizenship" and 2024 "Digital Society" modules is as follows:

① 2023 「National Identity and Citizenship」 Module

Topics include opinions on the nation, the necessity of the state, national pride, views on immigrants, opinions on foreign countries and international relations, conditions for being a true citizen, efforts required to become a true citizen, values related to being a good citizen, opinions on democracy, government policies, political orientation, public services, media, and perceptions of politicians and social leaders.

11) The development of 「Digital Society」 module involved participants from Austria (Anja Eder, Markus Hadler, and Matthias Penker), France (Sonja Zmerli), the Philippines (Irema Labucay and Jay Sandoval), South Africa (Benjamin Roberts and Jare Struwig), and South Korea (Jibum Kim). After the first official module development meeting began in October 2021, it was finalized in August 2023.

② 2024 「Digital Society」 Module

Topics include the extent of internet usage, proxy use of the internet, locations of internet use, avoidance of internet use, purposes of internet use, internet skills, online interactions, online media, online polarization, expression of political opinions online, values related to technology, online crime, political participation both online and offline, social trust, trust in institutions, data security, government and corporate surveillance, digital inequality, and issues related to artificial intelligence and robotics.

(2) EASS Topical Module Research

EASS (East Asian Social Survey) is a collaborative organization established in 2003 under Korea's initiative, aimed at promoting comparative research in East Asia among four countries – Korea, Japan, China, and Taiwan – that conduct General Social Survey (GSS)-type social surveys. EASS has conducted six surveys (「Family in East Asia」 in 2006 and 2016; 「Globalization & Culture in East Asia」 in 2008; 「Health in East Asia」 in 2010; 「Network Social Capital in East Asia」 in 2012). The fifth module, 「Work Life in East Asia」 which was scheduled for 2015, was not conducted in Korea and Japan. In 2018, the 「Globalization & Culture in East Asia」 survey was repeated for the second time, following the initial survey in 2008. In 2021, the 「Health in East Asia」 survey from 2010 was revisited. In 2023, the 「Network Social Capital in East Asia」 module from 2012 was conducted again.

Since the establishment of EASS, the Survey Research Center has taken on a leading role by representing EASS as a whole, undertaking the cleaning, integration, and harmonization of EASS raw data, and serving as a data archiving institution that disseminates this information worldwide (EASSDA, <http://www.eassda.org>). The total number of applications to EASSDA so far is 6,758, with the number of applications by country and module as follows:

- (1) Application status by country: Applications have been made from various countries around the world, including China (2,162 applications), Taiwan (1,385), Korea (661), the United States (626), Japan (579), and the United Kingdom (321).
- (2) Application status by module: Family (2006) 1,376 applications, Culture (2008) 1,419 applications, Health (2010) 1,295 applications, Social Networks (2012) 1,198 applications, Work Life (2015) 500 applications, Family (2016) 537 applications, and Culture (2018) 433 applications.

In the future, EASS plans to no longer develop new modules and will instead repeat the existing five modules every 10 years. The main topics of the 2023 「Network Social Capital in East Asia」 survey are as follows:

○ 2023 「Network Social Capital in East Asia」 Module

Topics include membership in specific social organizations, participation in activities within those organizations, relationships within the organization, contact with family and relatives, contact with acquaintances outside the family, occupations of relatives and acquaintances, acquaintances living abroad, assistance from acquaintances, sociability, relationships with neighbors, topics of conversation with local neighbors, community service activities, political opinions, levels of trust by occupation, and values regarding human nature.

(3) ESS Topical Module Survey

On February 7, 2023, a research collaboration agreement was signed with Professor Rory Fitzgerald, the Director of ESS.¹²⁾ In 2023, the 「Personal and social well-being」 module was surveyed. In 2025, a Gender module is scheduled to be investigated. A foundation has been established to enhance international comparative research between Korea and European countries in the future. The main topics of the 2023 「Personal and social well-being」 survey are as follows:

○ 2023 「Personal and social well-being」 Module

Topics include participation in volunteer or charitable organizations, optimistic attitudes toward the future, emotional experiences, social respect, intimacy, investment in oneself, exchange of help and support, and the degree of social relationships.

(4) Researcher-Proposed Special Module Survey

The researcher-proposed special module survey is a module suggested by researchers, who pay a certain research fee to include it in the KGSS for implementation. This researcher-proposed special module survey has the advantage of supplementing the shortfall in research funding received from existing research foundations, allowing researchers to conduct their studies at a lower cost.

2. Survey Methods

The Survey Research Center has endeavored to steadily improve the quality of the KGSS over the past 20 years. To generate trustworthy research results using KGSS data, data representativeness and reduction of overall survey errors are essential. The KGSS researchers and data managers continually strive to actively address and improve upon issues identified in the previous data collection process.

1) 2003 - 2023 Sample Design

2003-2014

(1) Sample Selection

The population for the KGSS consists of adult men and women aged 18 and older who reside in households across the country, do not live in institutions (e.g., dormitories, military bases), and can communicate in Korean. The sample size of the first (2003) and the second (2004) surveys was 2,000 but it was increased to 2,500 with the third (2005) survey to reduce standard errors and increase effective sample sizes. Between 2003 and 2005, data from the Ministry of the Interior and Safety was utilized instead of constructing sampling frames of households. The sample was selected using a multi-stage area probability sampling method. This method selects clusters with probability proportional to size (PPS) within stratum at each stage, and details are as follows:

- 1) The final number of sampling blocks was set at 200, which were then allocated to the metropolitan cities and provinces nationwide based on the most recent "Resident Registration Population Statistics" in proportion to the distribution of households. From each metropolitan city and province, the allocated number of primary sampling units (PSUs), such as Dong/Eup/Myun, was randomly selected using the principle of population-proportional probability sampling.

12) <https://www.europeansocialsurvey.org/news/article/agreement-korean-general-social-survey>

- 2) From the selected Dong/Eup/Myuns, the secondary sampling units (Tong/Ban for Dong, and Li for Myun) were randomly selected with the PPS method.
- 3) Within the selected Tong/Ban or Li, listers constructed the sampling frame using the traditional listing method or dependent listing method when a resident center's household list is available. After receiving the completed sampling frame, the Survey Research Center randomly selects 12 or 13 households in each of the selected areas and sends the list of selected households to each School Survey Team Coordinator. ¹³⁾
- 4) Interviewers visit the selected households in person, carefully list all adults 18 years of age and older within each selected household, and select an adult with the earliest birthday for the main interview. However, in 2006 and 2007, an adult member with the last birthday was selected for the main interview.

2016–2023 ¹⁴⁾

If there were a complete list of all adults, we would directly extract samples from that list. However, since such a list does not exist, we have selected tentative respondents using a regional probability sampling method through a four-step process. In this four-step process, the first three steps involve selecting households, and the final step is to identify eligible respondents from each selected household.

Until 2018, we used units such as "Tong/Ban" or "Tong/Li" as the second sampling unit, but starting in 2021, we began using the Statistical Office's Output Area.¹⁵⁾ The Statistical Office's Output Area is the smallest statistical collection area constructed based on the basic unit's population size (ideally 500 people), socioeconomic homogeneity (housing type, land price), and the shape of the area. The Statistical Office provides boundary maps and statistics on population, households, housing, and businesses through its geographic information service (<https://sgis.kostat.go.kr>).

(1) Selection of Primary Sampling Unit

The primary sampling unit (PSU) for the 2016–2023 KGSS is a Dong, Eub, or Myon. We selected PSUs (2016 = 100, 2018/2021 = 200) randomly with probability proportional to size.

A. Sampling Frame

The sampling frame was the list of local government administrative divisions and Dong/Eub/Myon. (3,496 Dong/Eub/Myon in 2015; 3,510 Dong/Eub/Myon in 2019; 3,518 Dong/Eub/Myon in 2022)

B. Stratification and Sample Allocation

We explicitly stratified the frame to improve the efficiency of estimates considering urban/rural difference. The primary sampling units were independently selected from each stratum, which consists of metropolitan cities and provinces. Based on the number of households in each metropolitan city and province, 100 primary sampling units were allocated in 2016, and 200 units were allocated after 2018.

MOS'_{ij} : Households number of metropolitan city/province(i^{th}) Dong/Eub/Myeon(j^{th})

n_i : Allocated primary sampling units allocated number of metropolitan city/province(i^{th})

N_i : Whole Dong/Eub/Myeon number of metropolitan city/province(i^{th})

$$n_i = \text{Number of PSUs (2006 = 100, since 2016 = 200)} \times \frac{\sum_{j=1}^{N_i} MOS'_{ij}}{\sum_{i=1}^{17} \sum_{j=1}^{N_i} MOS'_{ij}}$$

The allocation of sampling units was done using rounded integers. <Tables 2>, <Table 3>, and <Table 4> show the number of households in each stratum, which are the metropolitan cities and provinces, and the proportionate allocation of primary sampling units.¹⁶⁾

C. Selection

The required number of PSUs was systematically selected from the list of Dong/Eub/Myon's in each KwangYok Si/Do. The frame was sorted by KwangYok Si/Do and Gu/Gun before selecting samples. Details on the systematic selection method can be found in Cochran (1977), Kish (1965), and Sarndal, et al. (1992).

p_{ij} : The inclusion probability of the j^{th} Dong/Eub/Myon and the i^{th} KwangYok Si/Do

$$p_{ij} = n_i \times \frac{MOS'_{ij}}{\sum_{j=1}^{N_i} MOS'_{ij}}$$

(2) Selection of SSUs

The secondary sampling unit (SSU) was defined as Tong/Ban (for Dong) or Li (for Myun) until 2018. The second sampling unit has been defined as a census block since 2021. From each selected dong/eup/myeon, one second sampling unit is systematically selected by applying the principle of probability proportional to population size.

MOS'_{ijk} : The number of households in census block(k^{th}) of KwangYok Si/Do(i^{th}) and Dong/Eub/Myon(j^{th})

$p_{k|ij}$: The conditional selection probability in the census block(k^{th}) in each KwangYok Si/Do(i^{th}) and Dong/Eub/Myon(j^{th})

$$p_{k|ij} = \frac{MOS'_{ijk}}{MOS'_{ij}}$$

(3) Selection of Households

The sampler uses the dependent listing method when sampler obtained traditional listing or household-related data from the local community center as sampling frame in the selected census block (or tong/ban/ri until 2018). When this household sampling frame is sent to the Survey Research Center, the center randomly selects a predetermined number of households (16–24 households in 2016, and 12 households from 2018 onwards) from the selected area.

16) Since 2016, Sejong Special Autonomous City should have a primary sampling unit of 0 during rounding, meaning it should not be included. However, to include Sejong Special Autonomous City in the sample, a random sampling unit was assigned.

$p_{l|kij}$: The conditional selection probability in the census block(k^{th}) in each KwangYok Si/Do(l^{th}) and Dong/Eub/Myon(j^{th})

$$p_{l|kij} = \frac{m}{MOS_{ijk}}$$

The overall unconditional selection probability of households is a constant. The KGSS household samples since 2016 have been selected using the equal probability of selection method (EPSEM).

$$\begin{aligned} p_{ijkl} &= \text{Number of PSUs (2016 = 100, since 2018 = 200)} \times \frac{\sum_{j=1}^{N_i} MOS_{ij}}{\sum_{i=1}^{17} \sum_{j=1}^{N_i} MOS_{ij}} \times \frac{MOS_{ij}}{\sum_{j=1}^{N_i} MOS_{ij}} \times \frac{MOS_{ijk}}{MOS_{ij}} \times \frac{m}{MOS_{ijk}} \\ &= \text{Number of PSUs (2016 = 100, since 2018 = 200)} \times \frac{m}{\sum_{i=1}^{17} \sum_{j=1}^{N_i} MOS_{ij}} \end{aligned}$$

(4) Selection of Persons

After compiling a list of adults 18 years or older for each selected household, an adult is selected using the last birthday method at the time of the interview. The total number of completed interviews was 1,051 in 2016. In 2018, we used Kish Table to select a respondent. In 2021, we selected the household member who recently celebrated his/her birthday as a final interviewee. The total number of completed interviews was 1,031 in 2018, 1,205 in 2021 and 1,230 in 2023.

2) Fieldwork

From 2003 to 2018, actual surveys were conducted using the inter-university survey network, which has proven to be effective in both cost and data quality. The inter-university survey network organizes survey teams composed of one cooperating professor and one survey team leader, along with 5 to 15 interviewers at each university nationwide (Reference: Appendix 5. List of Collaborating Professors and Students in KGSS). The cooperating professor at each university guides the survey team, while the survey team leader manages and supervises the sampling and fieldwork in their designated area. To facilitate the fieldwork, the 'Regional Survey Team Leader' system, first introduced in 2004, has significantly contributed to improving its quality. The Regional Survey Team Leaders are primarily university students who have basic knowledge of social survey methods and fieldwork experience. Including these individuals, it is essential for all interviewers to understand the purpose and significance of the KGSS, as well as familiar with key aspects of the questionnaire and survey procedures in order to successfully conduct the fieldwork. In 2021, due to survey costs and the COVID-19 situation, a survey firm conducted the fieldwork. In 2023, the survey firm also carried out the interviews

The above [Figure 1] illustrates the survey implementation process involving 37 universities in 2016 and 45 universities in 2018. In 2016, students were recommended as survey team leaders through cooperating professors from 37 universities nationwide, with the same process conducted for 45 universities in 2018. In 2016, the center extracts 100 primary sampling units (dong/eup/myeon), with 200 extracted in 2018, followed by the selection of the secondary sampling units (Tong/Ban or Tong/Li). Once the survey team leaders from each university and the secondary sampling units are confirmed, the first survey team leader workshop is held. The workshop provides an overview of the research process, guidance on the roles of the team leaders, and training on how to create the sampling framework. After the workshop, the team leaders will visit the selected Tong/Ban or Tong/Li to develop the sampling framework. Once all the sampling frameworks created by the research team leaders are collected, the center will review them and request corrections or improvements for any inaccuracies or incomplete sections. Meanwhile, the center will begin developing the survey questionnaire as the team leaders are preparing the sampling frameworks. Once the sampling framework is complete, a second workshop for the research team leaders will be held to provide training on selecting interviewers and to conduct pre-survey training using the questionnaire developed by the center. While the research team leaders select interviewers and carry out the pre-survey, the center will finalize the household selection based on the sampling framework. After all preparations are complete, the center will convene the research team leaders and interviewers from all collaborating universities for a comprehensive orientation for all interviewers. At this time, the center will provide training on the purpose of the survey and practical survey methods. The interviewers will begin conducting the survey immediately after the orientation. In 2018, due to budget constraints, interviewer training was conducted at each university under the supervision of the university team leaders, using an "interviewer training video."¹⁷⁾

Since 2016, the selected households have been divided into odd-numbered and even-numbered sampling groups. Interviewers used Form A for odd-numbered households and Form B for even-numbered households, a method employed for survey experiment.¹⁸⁾ After completing the questionnaire, interviewers submit the completed questionnaires to the team leader, who reviews them before sending them to the center. The center then examines all received questionnaires and begins data entry. After the survey is completed, all survey tools—including the questionnaires, incomplete records, and respondent incentives—are collected and verified before the survey fees are paid. Following the completion of data entry, the data cleaning process begins immediately.

The details related to the overall survey process are as follows:

First, the survey is conducted through in-person interviews. However, before the interviewers visit the selected households, a letter requesting participation is sent. For households that do not respond or are difficult to contact, multiple follow-up letters are dispatched. This approach to contacting the respondents can be considered a mixed-mode survey.

Second, to assist the local team leaders and interviewers in conducting the survey, center researchers maintained ongoing communication throughout the survey period. To assist team leaders in creating the sampling framework, the center communicated with all local administrative offices and sent cooperation letters. Additionally, efforts were made to facilitate contact between interviewers and households in apartments, villas, and multi-unit residences through phone calls and sending cooperation letters to building managers. Furthermore, center research assistants maintained regular communication with team leaders via phone and messaging apps to promptly address any issues. Notably, in 2016 and 2018, a group chat was established with the PI and local university team leaders, enabling the PI to quickly respond to address field challenges and concerns.

Third, the Survey Research Center strictly adheres to the principle that interviewers are not permitted to arbitrarily substitute samples, whether households or household members, under any circumstances. If a sample household is replaced or if an interviewee within the sample household is incorrectly selected, a re-survey will be conducted without exception.

Fourth, the Survey Research Center stresses the importance of interviewers making continuous repeat visits to maximize response rates.

Fifth, the questionnaires collected during the fieldwork are immediately subjected to a verification process to check for any missing responses or logical inconsistencies. If any issues are found, supplementary surveys are promptly conducted through phone calls or revisits. In previous years, follow-up phone surveys were used to address missing items after all questionnaires had been collected. However, this practice was discontinued from 2016 due to timing issues between the actual interviews and the phone surveys, which made it difficult to accurately capture respondents' attitudes and behaviors at the time of the survey. While this method helped reduce missing data, it also had the disadvantage of not being able to pinpoint which specific items had missing responses.¹⁹⁾

Sixth, during the fieldwork, the paper-and-pencil interview method (PAPI) was the standard approach for data collection. However, when interviewer-administered interviews were not possible, a self-administered questionnaire method (SAQ) was used. Starting in 2021, interviews utilized both tablet-assisted personal interviews (TAPI) and paper questionnaires (PAPI). Among 1,205 respondents, 90.4% were surveyed using tablets, while 9.6% used paper questionnaires. In 2023, among 1,230 respondents, 99.0% were surveyed using tablets, and 1.0% used paper questionnaires.

Seventh, the KGSS utilized show cards. Show cards are large, clearly printed cards displaying the response categories of the item. During interviews, the interviewer presents the relevant show card to the respondent, which enhances the efficiency of the interview process. Unlike previous years, starting in 2016, show cards were used for all questions. For example, in response to the question, "1. Would you say that most of the time people try to be helpful, or they are mostly just looking out for themselves?" the response categories on the questionnaire are: "① Try to be helpful ② Just look out for themselves (3) Depends (4) Don't know". In the KGSS, the interviewer reads aloud response categories with numbers inside a circle. However, for categories with numbers inside parentheses, the interviewer does not read them aloud. Instead, they are recorded only if the respondent voluntarily provides that answer. The use of show cards may influence responses to "(3) Depends".

Eighth, in the KGSS over the past 20 years, a separate 'Interviewer Observation Record' section has been included at the end of the questionnaire. This section allows the interviewer to immediately record details about the interview circumstances, such as interview date and time, presence of others during the interview, the respondent's attitude, their level of understanding of the questions, and any difficulties in making contact.

Finally, beginning in 2021, a survey of interviewers has been conducted to identify their characteristics, attitudes related to the interview process, and behaviors during interview situation.²⁰⁾

3. Use of Data

1) Data Input and Processing

The KGSS makes every effort to enhance the reliability of the data not only during the data collection process but also in the processes of data entry, editing, coding, cleaning, and archiving.

(1) Data Input and Cleaning

We checked each questionnaire thoroughly as soon as the completed questionnaires were collected. Then, a data input specialist entered the data. From 2016 onward, unlike in previous years, if a data point was entered twice and the results did not correspond, we created the final input data by confirming the survey to correct any input errors. In 2018, after correcting the discrepancies in the input data, we compared all the questionnaires with the input data again to re-confirm the matching input data. In 2021, unlike in previous years, a research company collected personal interviews. From 2003 to 2018, we employed a paper-and-pencil interview(PAPI) method for data collection; however, in 2021, for the first time, we used both Tablet Assisted Personal Interview(TAPI) and Paper-and-pencil interview(PAPI) methods. For this reason, the Center did not input the data but cleaned the data that the research company had provided.

(2) Cleaning Methods

All the input data underwent a cleaning process through SPSS, including range checks (minimum value, maximum value), cross-analysis, and more. Non-logical responses were corrected by rechecking the questionnaires, and responses to inapplicable questions were marked as "not applicable." Starting with the 2016 KGSS, when respondents provided contradictory answers to correlated questions, we no longer corrected these contradictions, as it was unclear which responses was erroneous, and we chose to disclose them as is. Additionally, we aimed to correct errors using variables rather than relying solely on respondent IDs whenever possible. To ensure consistency in the cleaning process, we carefully preserved the modified syntax files. This allows recurring errors in the data to be corrected through the stored syntax files, ensuring the integrity of the initial modifications.

Individuals who participate in surveys provide sensitive information that requires strict confidentiality and privacy protection. We excluded personal identifiers, such as names, address, company names, from the data. Additionally, we chose not to release geographic information beyond the city or province level from the cumulative data from 2003 to 2021. However, researchers can request access to detailed geographic information through geographic data usage request portal²¹⁾ and conduct various studies using this information.²²⁾

2) Process of Industry and Occupation Classification

2003–2014

Industry and occupation coding was based on three open-ended questions: respondents and their spouses' industry and occupation (company name), job title, and job description (see Table <5>). After collecting completed questionnaire, industry and occupation classifications were directly coded on the questionnaire and the result was entered by data input specialists. Industry and occupation variable names are INDUSTRY, OCC for respondents and SPIND, SPOCC for spouses. The coding process was completed via a one-time input.

<Table 5> Respondent and Spouses' Industries and Occupations, Job titles, and Job Descriptions.

The KGSS's industry and occupation classification in 2016–2023 was based on the Korea National Statistical Office's Korean Standard Industrial Classification (KSIC) and Korean Standard Classification of Occupations (KSCO). The KSCI usually classifies occupations based on the similarity of industrial activities, while the KSCO classify occupation based on what individual do for making their income (economic activity). An industry classification followed the KSIC of the Korean National Statistical Office, and occupation classification was grounded on the principle of occupation classification and notice of occupation classification system as well as the Statistics Training Institute's occupation classification education documents (2016).

We also used searching terms like "classification code," "explanation," "example," and "index word" in the KSIC and KSCO search engine of the Korean National Statistical Office's Statistical classification's website²³). In the statistical classification web commentary, if you input such terms, you can find the "classification code" and "classification name," while if the job is similar but not the same as the input occupation/industry, they indicate an "exception." The KGSS's industry and occupation classification basically refers to information from the Korea National Statistical Office and their commentary; however, we followed our own rules when we needed detailed facts and figures. According to the steps above, we finalized the industry and occupation codes. Industry classification is a 2 digit medium category and occupation classification consists of 4 digit and 5 digit categories in the KGSS.

The 2016–2018 KGSS industry and occupation classification first entered all responses from the

23) <http://kssc.kostat.go.kr> survey regarding the respondent's (spouse's) industry, job title, and job description into an Excel program. Sometimes, it was not easy to categorize jobs and industries based on the respondent and spouse's industry, job title, and job description. As a result, information such as sex, age, education, income, and employment status was sought for industry and occupation coding. In 2018, industry and occupation coding was conducted in two steps. Two coders independently input industry and occupation coding values in the 1st industry occupation classification. Then, in the 2nd industry occupation classification, the third coder compared two independent coders' values in the 1st industry occupation classification and finalized it. For the sake of the consistent industry and occupation coding for all the years of the KGSS, we reclassified the industry and occupation classification from 2003 to 2014 to follow the standard of 2016–2018's industry and occupation classification.²⁴⁾

61. What kind of industry does your father work in, and what did he do for a living when you were 16? Please be specific.

|---------|---------------------------------------|-------|
| Probing | 61.1 Industry and Occupation | _____ |
| | (Company name): | _____ |
| | 61.2 Job Title : | _____ |
| | 61.3 Job Description: | _____ |
| | ___ (-1) Father passed away before 16 | |

The 2021–2023 KGSS Industry and occupation classification followed the same procedure as the 2016–2018 KGSS. In 2021 and 2023, however, a question regarding the respondent's father's industry and occupation was added when the respondent was 16 years old. The respondent and spouse's industry and occupation coding were classified based on answers about the industry, job title, job description, sex, age, education attainment, income, employment status, and status of workers. Unlike the classification of the respondent's and spouse's industry and occupation, the coding of the father's industry and occupation when the respondent was 16 years old relied solely on the educational level as an auxiliary item to determine industry and occupation. Before final coding, an additional review was conducted to categorizing respondents by age group. Furthermore, the industry and occupation coding for 2021–2023 was carried out in two stages. In the first stage, two independent coders assigned coding values for industry and occupation classification, and in the second stage, the values coded by one coder were compared to finalize the input values for industry and occupation coding.

3) Calculation of Weights for KGSS

From 2003 to 2014, with an exception of 2012, there were no weights in KGSS. KGSS started to provide weights for all-year analyzing in 2016(VAR: FINALWT). The current document describes the methods for the calculation of weights for KGSS 2003 – 2023 survey data.

Let $W_{1,i}$ be the initial weight for the i^{th} sample adult of each annual sample. Sample housing units were selected with equal probability for each annual survey. An adult (18 and over) was randomly selected from eligible adults within each household [Cite Sampling Report]. Therefore, $W_{1,i}$ is.

$$W_{1,i} = E,$$

24) Kim, ChangHwan, Jibum Kim, and Mihee Ban. (2020). "Do you know what you do for a living? Occupational coding mismatches between coders in the Korean General Social Survey." Research in Social Stratification and Mobility 70. <https://doi.org/10.1016/j.rssm.2019.100467> where E is the number of eligible adults in each selected household, an inverse of within-household selection probability.²⁵⁾

In the absence of non-response and non-coverage, the initial weights ($W_{1,i}$) would be the weights of KGSS analyses. Post-stratification adjustment to the initial weight was done to correct potential non-response bias and coverage errors. Post-stratification adjustment cells were constructed using the following 4 variables with specific categories:

j: Gender (Male, Female)

k: Age (18-29, 30-39, 40-49, 50-59, 60 and over)

l: Region (Seoul, Kyunggi, Kangwon/Jeju, Chungchong, Kyungsang, Cholla)

m: Urbanicity (Urban, Rural).

For each year, let T_{jklm} be a population total for a combination of gender, age, region, and urbanicity. The post-stratified weights, $W_{2,ijklm}$ of the i^{th} person within cell (j,k,l,m) is.

$$W_{2,ijklm} = W_{1,ijklm} \frac{T_{jklm}}{\sum_i W_{1,ijklm}}$$

If the 4-way tables for the population totals were available and the number of completed interviews for each annual KGSS was large enough to support the 4-way tables (i.e., each cell size is sufficiently large, e.g., 20), we could create the post-stratified weights using the above formula. However, we decided to use an alternative method (iterative proportional fitting procedure or raking method) for post-stratification adjustment to the initial weights after considering the sparseness of 4-way cross-tabulation and the availability of the corresponding population distribution.

The method of raking is to find the population counts, T_{jklm}^* , by an iterative proportional fitting procedure under marginal constraints:

$$T_{j++++}^* = \sum_k \sum_l \sum_m T_{jklm}^* = T_{j++++}, j=1, \dots, J$$

$$T_{+k+++}^* = \sum_j \sum_l \sum_m T_{jklm}^* = T_{+k+++}, k=1, \dots, K$$

$$T_{++++m}^* = \sum_j \sum_k \sum_l T_{jklm}^* = T_{++++m}, m=1, \dots, M$$

The marginal population distributions of Sex, Age, Region, and Urbanicity were obtained from the Census. <Table 6> shows the population distributions for adults aged 18 and over. There are three columns of census distributions for 2005, 2010, 2015, 2020 and 2022. The distributions for 2005 are "control totals" for 2003 - 2005 KGSS. Similarly, Control total for 2010 was applied to 2008-2012 KGSS and Control total for 2020 was applied to 2021 KGSS. Also, Control total for 2022 was applied to 2023.

25) There were 17 one-person households with missing age for the 2003-2021 surveys. A value of one was assigned to the missing number of adults for the 17 households. For a few multiple-person households with household members without age for the 2003-2016 surveys, the value is the count of adults with valid age values.

At the first step, the estimators are, where n_{jklm} is the number of completed interviews in the cell (j,k,l,m) . Note that $\sum_j \sum_k \sum_l \sum_m n_{jklm} = n$, the number of completed interviews for each year.

$$T_{jklm}^{(1)} = n_{jklm} \frac{T_{j+++}}{n_{j+++}},$$

Then, the next estimators are

$$T_{jklm}^{(2)} = T_{jklm}^{(1)} \frac{T_{j+++}}{T_{j+++}^{(1)}},$$

And for same method is used to the variables k, l, and m.²⁶⁾ The values obtained through the raking method converged quickly; for example, the 2016 KGSS converged within 7 iterations.

Before the computation of the weights began, we randomly imputed values for 21 missing values for 2003 - 2023 surveys for Age variable with probabilities proportional to observed distributions.

The "raked" weights, $W_{2,i}$, for the i^{th} person in cell (j,k,l,m) is

$$W_{2,ijklm} = W_{1,ijklm} \frac{T_{ijklm}^*}{\sum_i W_{1,ijklm}}$$

The final weights, $W_{3,i}$, were "normalized" as

$$W_{3,i} = W_{2,i} \frac{n}{\sum_i W_{2,i}},$$ or

$$\sum_i^n W_{3,i} = n$$

That is, the sum of the final weights for each survey is equal to the number of completed interviews.

4) Producing Cumulative Data

In the past, annual data and yearly codebook were published. Since 2016, cumulative data and codebooks have been made publicly available on the KGSS website. By continuously providing cumulative data and cumulative yearbook, we aim to minimize the inconvenience for researchers in creating their own cumulative datasets.

5) Archiving Data

The KGSS data, which has undergone accurate input and meticulous refinement, is archived in both domestic and international institutions, providing users with free access to the data. In addition to Korean and English data, Chinese data is also provided.

- ① Korean General Society Survey (KGSS) (<http://kgss.skku.edu/>)
- ② Korea Social Science Data Archive (KOSSDA) (<http://www.kosdda.or.kr/>)

Table 801 Voting is a duty

[Questionnaire] There are many different opinions about participating in elections. Some believe you must vote even if you don't like any given candidates or parties, because voting is a rightful duty of a democratic citizen. On the other hand, some believe voting is a choice given to a democratic citizen so it's okay to vote or not depending on how much you like the candidates or the parties.
